Using the palliAGED palliative care case conference forms

A case conference or family meeting between the person, their family and care providers can help to explain what is happening and to plan care. The palliAGED forms can help.

Use the palliAGED case conference checklist for residential care or for home care to organise a palliative care case conference. Tick off items as they are completed.

Speak with the person and their family about the need for a case conference. Provide information on palliative care and case conferences.

Involving the person's GP is important. Use the GP invitation to invite them to attend, and/or to suggest a suitable time.

Closer to the date of the case conference, send a letter confirming details to the person and their family, and send confirmation to the GP.

To guide the meeting and to make sure that all steps following the conference are completed use the palliAGED case conference summary for residential care or case conference summary for home care sheet.

Palliative care case conferences

It has been suggested that a case conference be held to discuss how you, or your family member might benefit from palliative care. The following explains what this is and why it is important.

Case conference: Case conferences or family meetings are an opportunity to discuss a person's care needs. They ideally include the person (if able to attend), their family and/or their substitute decision-maker, and members of the care team including the doctor.

Palliative care: Palliative care is person- and family-centred care that supports a person to live the best life they can with a life-limiting illness. A life-limiting illness means that the person has little or no prospect of cure and is expected to die. The focus is on quality of life.

Life-limiting illnesses include dementia, advanced heart, kidney, lung or liver disease, cancer, and motor neurone disease.

People can receive palliative care for days or weeks, or for months to years. Older people coming to the end of their life without illness may have some of the same care issues. They can also benefit from the approaches to care taken in palliative care.

Common care issues in palliative care include:

- pain
- dyspnoea (breathing difficulty)
- dysphagia (difficulty swallowing)
- constipation/incontinence (bowel and/or bladder management)
- depression
- delirium (sudden confusion)
- anxiety
- nausea (feel that you want to vomit)
- fatigue (tiredness).

Who should attend a case conference?

Staff in residential aged care facilities and providers of home care often meet with families. If possible, the person receiving care should attend, their GP, and any concerned family members or friends.
